ties and chronic illnesses, recently launched a Job Readiness program to help its members prepare for the workplace. The program will help participants analyze their skills and work interests, create a résumé and approach employers.

“Our goal is to provide the coaching and support our members’ need to find meaningful work in a welcoming environment that is geared to their needs,” says Michelle McClure, Ability Online’s director of program development and member services.

Founded in 1991, Ability Online has grown into an Internet community where young people can share hopes, fears and experiences. Its 3,300 members come from around the world. For more information, visit www.abilityonline.org.
